

The internet is the single greatest invention in all of human history. It has allowed people from all over the world to connect with one another in a matter of seconds and share their ideas and beliefs in a sort of web like structure of communication. That's why it's called the world wide web—www. It has been declared as a basic human right and it should be. Everyone needs it and it should be allowed by everyone.

So in all that is good in the world do you want to profit from it? You guys already have a fuck ton of money, why do you need more? Do you seriously need another expensive watch, bag, or food item? Do you need another yacht? Another island? Another car? NO. You don't need these things, you want these things. People need the internet in order to serve their purpose and communicate with each other.

This plan might seem like a good moneymaker to you, but you Suits seriously underestimate the power of laziness that are the people of the internet. Sure, in your mind you think you'll make a lot of money because the people will pay for these plans in order to use the internet. That won't work, not in the slightest. People can be so stubborn that they would be willing to give up Netflix, YouTube, and even the internet all together if it meant saving a few bucks.

You think I'm exaggerating here, but remember, part of the people who thrive on the internet—people who you are trying to squeeze money out of and cause inconvenience—are the same people that leaked a whole bunch of nude celebrity pics, posted private email and street address of said celebrities, uploaded pornographic photos of their enemies, and hacked into the servers of large companies to leak information just out of sheer spite. Seriously, if you go through with this plan, the only people paying for it will be the large companies and rich people, for the people previously mentioned will stop at nothing to make your lives a living hell. I wish I was joking here, but I don't think I can considering these are very real things that people have done. Imagine what that'll do to your public images when some random fart on a computer and extra cash reveals certain dealings with certain, unethical people/companies. In the end, the it will be you and the rich who will ultimately be the only ones actually paying for the new program. Literally.

You see, besides the vengeance of millions of people who use the internet daily, you'll find that you will all be losing a significant amount of money. I and the people will not. Because in the end, we won't give a fucking dime to you or your companies, so if that's the case, where do you think the money will come from? That's right, you and the rich. If you pass this dumb ruling, the only ones who will pay, will be you.

There's a line that I like to read, because it is true "You can enslave people, you can take away their freedoms, starve them, kill them, torture them, and they won't fight back. But if you cause a slight inconvenience to their daily lives—well then, you got a revolution on your hands." Make the right choice, because I don't think you'll like what'll happen if you make the wrong one.